Flexibility of design

Kabrioah Irrigation is committed to delivering a high quality yet customised service. Every project is tailored to the specific client's requirements, whether they are looking for a beautiful and unique garden design or an infallible agricultural irrigation system. If water restrictions are limited, staff are dedicated to optimising the resources available for the client, while still maintaining a delightful design above ground.

Next generation approach

Water is one of the world's most valuable resources. Accurate distribution and conscious consumption is vital, not only environmentally to help reduce the devastating effects of climate change, but also to ensure long term accessibility in every part of the world. Kabrioah's environmentally aware approach to water consumption means every service provided is geared towards preservation and conservation. The result is minimised installation costs and reduced water usage, saving clients on all possible avenues.

Judges' comments

The judges found the company's ethics and punctuality commendable. Both those factors contribute to the overall impressive workmanship that is reflected in both results and client reviews. The high standard of customer service is often praised by clients, with the team always willing to tailor the approach and provide knowledgeable advice. Punctuality and efficiency are key for Kabrioah, and all staff maintain a professional appearance in company-branded uniform at all times.

The judges also admired the company's focus on sustainability, by always aiming to ensure services do not have a negative impact on the planet's water supply. Reducing water usage and wastage is also how Kabrioah prioritises affordability for customers. Using the latest tools and equipment on the market, the qualified team of professionals can turn ordinary land into a piece of art. Customers were impressed with the level of expertise, the meticulous delivery of services on time and subsequently the results that exceed all expectations.
